Don Eichhorn Award Winning Schools

Don Eichhorn is considered to be one of the founding fathers of the middle school movement in Pennsylvania. Don was the one who coined the term, "transescence," to describe the stage of development that begins prior to the onset of puberty and extends through the early stages of adolescence. Don organized the first middle school in Pennsylvania, Fort Couch Middle School, in the Upper Saint Clair School District. Don was passionate about the middle level and designing a program to meet all the developmental needs of all students. This award is presented to the middle school that demonstrates successful implementation of middle level practices and commitment to middle level philosophy.

Promising Practitioner Award

Beginning in the 2002 – 2003 school year, this award is presented to teachers who are just beginning their middle school careers. These beginning teachers have made a positive impact on both their school and community. They incorporate effective middle level practices in their everyday teaching. Each PMSA member school has the opportunity to nominate up to three teachers yearly to receive this distinction. The first “class” of awardees was announced from the podium at the 2003 State Conference in Hershey, PA.
